

People On Purpose
Episode 15:
Peyton Pugmire

Peyton Pugmire is the founding director and owner of Creative Spirit, a center for creativity and personal transformation in Marblehead MA. Peyton first connected with his own creative spirit as a child in Georgia when he would paint, color, write, cook, dance, sing...AND mount full blown theatre productions in his family's basement! Since then, the strength he acquired through his art has fueled his personal journey of embracing his full self. Today, Peyton strives to live as authentically and creatively as possible, and he is passionate about inspiring others to do the same.

Peyton holds a BA degree in Theatre (College of Charleston) and a MA degree in Theatre Education (Emerson College). A member of the North American Drama Therapy Association, he is currently studying to become a Registered Drama Therapist. He has held top leadership positions with The Boston Conservatory at Berklee (Associate Director of Theater), the Watertown Children's Theatre (Producing Artistic Director), and Wheelock Family Theatre (Director of Education). From 2005 to 2013, he founded and ran Divine Stage Works, a small Boston theatre company. Peyton has taught across generations, including inner-city youth, college students, and adults. Peyton is an accomplished actor, theatre director and trained painter, as well as a certified spiritual intuitive with clients from coast to coast. He also has enjoyed studying shamanism and meditation.
